MAJORITY LEADERS WILL PROPOSE FIVE WEEK HOUSE RECESS

Every Effort to Be Concentrated on Clearing Calendar in the Meantime.

COMMITTEES WILL WORK

Hearings on Tariff, Railroad and Marine Matters and War Department Investigations to Continue While the House is Not in Session.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 26—Majority leaders have decided to propose to the House leaders a five-week recess of the House beginning next week, every effort in the meantime being devoted to clearing the calendar.

The plan contemplates that hearings on tariff, railroads and marine matters, war department investigations, and similar committee work continue during the recess.

Republican Floor Leader Mondell holds that the attention of committee members should be concentrated on these hearings if the House itself was not in session.

Republican House leaders, after informal conferences today with Senate leaders, decided to begin the house recess August 2 and continue to September 8. Few Senators objected to the program, it was said.

Considerable progress on the Senate prohibition enforcement bill was made today by the Judiciary sub-committee but as only a few Senators attended decisions on the legislation are tentative They included reafirmation of approval of the House provisions fixing the maximum alcoholic contents of beverages at one-half of one per cent.

SHIP STRIKE OVER

Marine Workers Get Big Increase in Pay.

By Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 26.—End of the strike of 40,000 marine workers which has tied up shipping in Atlantic and Gulf ports for the last three weeks was announced here today by Gustave Brown, general secretary of the International Seamen's Union, who added that ships would be moving by this afternoon.

The men, Secretary Brown stated, are satisfied with the terms of settlement which includes an increase of $15 a month per man for all except the coastal passers who receive a $10 increase. Latest reports from local unions all over the country, he said, showed unanimity for waving the claim for an eight-hour day at sea and a closed shop in order to end the strike.

WOULD CUT TAX

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Repeal of the Canadian reciprocity act of 1911 as recommended today by the House Ways and Means committee. Some Democrats joined with the Republicans in voting for repeal but others did that action should be deferred pending further investigation.

The committee also voted to recommend the repeal of the 10 per cent soft drink war tax. Though no record vote was taken Democratic members urged that all repeals be deferred until means for replacing the lost revenue was found.

Reduction of war tax on fruit juices to two cents a gallon urged by western producers of grapes and cranberries also was recommended.

HARRISBURG, July 26.—Until an alien becomes fully naturalized, he cannot fish in Pennsylvania waters, according to an opinion written by Deputy Attorney General William L. Hope for Fish Commissioner Buller. The fact that an alien has taken out his first papers does not alter the case.

RELIEF FROM SUGAR SHORTAGE IN SIGHT; SUPPLY IS ABUNDANT

Says Head of Sugar Board; Price Should not Exceed 11 Cents; No Need of Hoarding.

WASHINGTON, July 26—There is expectation that the sugar shortage which has existed for a week or longer will be relieved very shortly. The War Department has sold 37,000,000 pounds to the Sugar Equilization board which is to be distributed through dealers.

George A. Zabriskie, president of the board, declares there is an abundance of raw sugar in the country, that retail prices should not exceed 11 cents a pound and that there is no need of hoarding.

Mr. Zabriskie declares that the refineries now are working night and day and that their combined output of 41,175,000 pounds a day is being put into domestic channels of trade. Refiners, he said, have not sent a pound of sugar abroad for two weeks. Exportation will not be resumed until American needs are entirely met.

The head of the sugar equilization board said that profiteering dealers, if reported, may suffer revocation of their licenses, for they are still under the control of the Federal Food Administration, which will not cease to function until the Senate ratifies the peace treaty. He charged the apparent shortage to speculative "exporters" and belated orders from canners and candy makers. Housewives were hoarding sugar unnecessarily, he said.

Locally, conditions are much better. A few days ago only "brown" and cube sugar or domino grades could be procured. The receipt of a supply has eased the market but buyers are limited to quantities not exceeding four pounds at a single purchase.

BLEDSOE SOME SHOT

B. & O. Police Chief Gets Three Birds in Tough at 100 Yards.

Captain R. C. Bledsoe, chief of the Connellsville Division of Baltimore & Ohio police, has the distinction of being one of the best pistol shots in the United States. Officer Fred P. Hare, former chief of police of Meyersdale, now on the Baltimore & Ohio force, and who is a pretty handy man with a gun, himself, recently witnessed a test of Captain Bledsoe's skill with a revolver, and says he did the best shooting he ever saw. Officer Hare says Captain Bledsoe shot offhand at three killdeers flying along the surface of the Youghiogheny river near Connellsville, at a distance of at least 100 yards. He knocked feathers out of two of the birds and killed the third. Captain Bledsoe has challenged any one to hit a small moving mark three times in succession at that distance. Lieutenant Ludwig and Officer Hare are practicing to accept the challenge, but they think it will take them a long while to shoot as straight as their keen-eyed and steady-nerved captain.

ALLEGED "BOOTLEGGER" HELD ON CHARGE OF SHOOTING CUSTOMER

That Salvatore Levoni has been "bootlegging" at Layton for the past six years was brought out at a hearing yesterday before Alderman W. D. Colborn. Levoni was arrested on two charges, both preferred by Feodor Kacham, charging aggravated assault and battery and shooting with intent to kill, and selling liquor without a license and on Sunday. Levoni was held under $1,500 bail for court.

Kacham brought the charges after an altercation at the latter's home in Layton on Sunday, July 6, over the amount of money he owed for liquor. Kacham charges Levoni threatened to shoot him if he did not pay and as he walked from the house the defendant fired four shots, three of which took effect, One, it was brought out, still lodges in his knee. An X-ray picture to locate it will be taken tomorrow at the Cottage State hospital.

Testifying before the alderman, Kacham said he went to Levoni's home on Sunday, July 6, where he drank some wine. Wishing some to take home with him, Levoni refused to sell unless he paid what he already owed. Then the argument over the amount of money followed.

Kacham had five witnesses present at the trial. Levoni did not deny selling the liquor, but said he had disposed of none since July 1. Kacham's witnesses differed with him, however. One woman said she had seen whisky and beer delivered at the house. Since prohibition became effective, however, she said she had only seen a barrel of wine taken in. Another witness said he had bought the liquor by both glass and bottle He was charged 25 cents a glass, he said.

Testimony of other prisoners brought out the fact that for six years Levoni has been trafficking in intoxicating drinks. According to one man, the liquor was sold on the card system, which could be used for either whisky, wine or beer.

GARDENS AT TWO FRICK PLANTS VALUED AT $14,150 BY JUDGES

Prizes Awarded at Central and South West Plant No. 3 After Careful Inspection.

The inspection, awarding of prizes and the placing of a value on the H. C. Frick Coke company employes' gardens at Central and South West No. 3 plants for the year 1919 took place Thursday, July 24, the judges being I. F. Overholt, a practical gardener of Miami, Fla.; J. W. Shields, formerly city engineer of Altoona; and C. A. Sherrick, a retired farmer of Mount Pleasant. The entire day was consumed at the two plants, as the work of selecting the winners was a very difficult one. The judges were compelled to return and look over several plots two and three times before being able to render a decision.

At Central, the prizes for lawns went to the following: First prize, $5, to Mrs. Michael Sparah, wife of a miner, house No. 34; second prize, $3, to Mrs. John Smulskey, wife of a fireman, house No. 36; and third prize, $1, to Mrs. James Mottle, wife of a coal hauler, house No. 33; with honorable mention to Mrs. Steve Dropik, wife of a coke drawer, house No. 12.

The prizes for vegetable gardens were awarded to the following: First prize, $10, to James Mottle, coal hauler, house No. 33; second prize, $5, to Michael Sparah, miner, house No. 34; and third prize, $3, to Samuel Haiden, miner, house No. 93. There was a total of 108 plots cultivated, the valuation on which was placed, very conservatively, at $6,900, or an average of $63.89 for each plot. This is an increase of 50 per cent over 1918 and is due entirely to the good growing weather.

The following long list of honorable mention shows how near a large number came to being winners in the vegetable garden contest. Tony Tell, miner, house No. 15; Joseph Tuckosh, dayman, house No. 23; John Verotsoko, coal hauler, house No. 31; Mike Comport, miner, house No. 32; Ross Comport, miner, house No. 41; Dom Demagal, miner, house No. 59; Tony Demagel, miner, house No. 58; John Dockmanovics, miner, house No. 86; Charles Shinsky, a one-armed miner, house No. 51; Mrs. Rudolph Haiden, widow of deceased miner, house No. 134; Samuel Cedro, miner, house No. 91; Mike Marine, miner, house No. 88; Lawrence Stoner, miner, house No. 89; Joseph Mihlnock, miner, house No. 73.

At South West No. 3, 71 plots were cultivated, the value of the products being figured at $3,409.00, or an average of $47.85 for each plot. This is an increase of 10 per cent over 1918 and everybody is singing high praises to the good Weather Man.

The prizes were awarded as follows: First prize for garden, $5, to William Thomas, miner, house No. 9; second prize, $3, to Frank Oral, coke drawer, house No. 2. For lawns the prizes went to the following: First prize, $4, to Mrs. Lyman Stoner, wife of a fireman, house No. 59; second prize, $2, to Mrs. Bernard Ramsay, wife of a coke drawer, house No. 58. Honorable mention for vegetable gardens was given to Andro Baluh, miner, house No. 14; William Jarem, coal hauler, house No. 17; Philip DeCar, coke drawer, house No. 18; Dom Dementia, miner, house No. 62; Dan Cedro, miner, house No. 63; Isaac Cramer, carpenter, house No. 7; Mack Clark, coal hauler, house No. 16; Stany Wisnicsky, pensioner, house No. 23.

Several of the employes have war gardens, there being at the two plants about four acres, and the valuation on this product was placed at $3,850.00. This makes a total of $14,150.00 for vegetables raised by the employes (250) at the two plants, or an average for each employe of $57. This is a strong weapon for use on old Mr. High Cost of Living, and the more people we can get to follow along with the H. C. Frick Coke company employes at Central and South West No. 3, the sooner we will be able to bury the old fellow.

After the inspection was over and the judges had compared notes, they were entertained at dinner by Mrs. Harry Brown, wife of the superintendent, to which they did ample justice.

NAB SWINDLER

W. D. O'Donnell, Promoter of Presto Coal Company, Arrested.

W. D. O'Donnell, of Gary, Indiana, wanted in Fayette county to answer 40 charges of false pretense in connection with the sale of stock on the Presto Coal company, was arrested yesterday in Chicago. He was picked up there on other charges of false pretense in connection with a patent can-opener concern.

O'Donnell will likely be extradited and brought to Fayette county for trial at the September term of court.

The Presto Coal company was a concern existing only on paper and in O'Donnell's brain. It was represented to own large coal holdings near Ohiopyle which were to be worked on a co-operative plan. Miners were to receive union wages, a house and lot each, and a share in the dividends. About $500,000 worth of stock is said to have been disposed of, mostly to foreign-born residents. Two of O'Donnell's associates were arrested and are out on bail. The defendant is said to be wanted on other charges growing out of stock propositions.

STRIKE SETTLED

Aviators Reinstated; Result of Misunderstanding, is Claim.

By Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 26—Announcement was made today at the Postoffice Department that the first strike of the aviators in history had been settled. After a conference between Second Assistant Postmaster General Praeger and a representative of the air mail plane pilots, it was said that the strike was the result of a misunderstanding.

Six aviators, who refused yesterday to take the air with mail planes from New York for Washington and Bellefonte, Pa., and from the latter city to Cleveland, have been reinstated, it was announced. They were dismissed from the corps yesterday. The two pilots whose dismissals led to the strike have been reinstated.

46 ARRESTS SO FAR IN JULY IS CITY'S LOW MARK

TOTAL OF FINES SMALL

Receipts For This Month Reach $348, But in This Total Are Included Four $50 Forfeits Collected From Suspicious Persons During Home-Coming.

Some folks who sorely miss their "eye opener" in the morning or the habitual nip during the day may think the city is "dead," but the police authorities are sure of it. Today, for the first time this week, a police court session was held, one man appearing before Acting Mayor R. W. Hoover. He was charged with being drunk and fighting. His antagonist was released last night on the payment of a $5 forfeit. Both were arrested by Lieutenant Thomas McDonald about 11:20 o'clock last night.

Since July 1, arrests have been cut away down. Especially in the past week have things been quiet. During the week, one man was arrested for speeding, one for being disorderly at home and last night two for fighting.

Four cases in a week is not so bad. Ordinarily the officers made more arrests over night than are now made in one, or even two weeks.

In the 26 days of July's 31, there have been only 46 arrests. This is about one-third the number jailed in the same length of time during the period just before July 1.

Of the 46, only 18 have been for drunkenness. Six men arrested on this charge were released by the acting mayor and 12 paid fines, totaling in all, $61. Arrests on other charges totaled 28. Fines and forfeits collected from these persons amounted to $348.50.

There is every probability that next month will see an even smaller number of arrests and smaller returns from fines and forfeits. July's receipts are somewhat heavier on account of the heavy forfeits assessed suspicious persons, arrested during the Home-Coming celebration and the firemen's convention. Four forfeits during that week were for $50 each and it is not every month that such amounts are collected.

The police docket for the month of July has been more of a decoration for the desk at the city hall than a useful article. It is in better shape than any police docket has been in years, not having had so much handling. Another noticeable fact about it is that only a section of the book has been filled. There have been times in the history of the police department when more than one docket has been necessary to finish out the month. Evidently this day has passed.

Soon the time will come when tales of long police court sessions will be ancient history. The court room has a deserted feeling in the mornings now. The usual group of spectators who happened in to hear the mayor's trials is missing and most of the time the prisoners are, too. The cell rooms, too, are empty for the most part.

An admission of ten cents, all the proceeds to be for the benefit of the society, will be charged. Refreshments will be served and an aluminum article will be given as a souvenir to one member of each family represented at the demonstration. All are invited. At the close of the business meeting a social hour was held and dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. Smith of Brownsville, the guest of Mrs. Bittner of Trotter, and Mrs. Mills of Carnegie, the guest of Mrs. W. Black, were out of town guests. The next regular meeting will be held Friday evening, August 8, in the chapel of the church.

McKee Orchestra Pleases.

About 250 couples attended the dance at Shady Grove last night, attracted there by the announcement that McKee's orchestra, famous for its Victrola records, had been engaged at big expense to furnish the music. The orchestra, everyone admitted, was fine and deserving of the high praise accorded it everywhere. A lot of novelties in the rendition of dance numbers were introduced. A jazz trombonist won the admiration of the dancers, though it was evident each of the seven performers was a finished artist. Quite a crowd went to the park just to hear the music.

SAVED BY TESTAMENT

Bullet Strikes Private Burnworth But Is Imbedded in Book.

Private Russell C. Burnworth, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra H. Burnworth of Johnson Chapel, near Confluence, was saved from death in the Argonne forest drive of the late war by a small testament which he carried in his pocket. A bullet, which probably ricocheted from a stone, hit him directly over the heart. The testament, which he carried in the pocket of his blouse, stopped it.

The missile tore a triangular hole in the front cover and continued through the book, stopping at the 13th chapter of Acts. Oddly enough, this was page 320, the number of Burnworth's regiment. Though stunned by the impact of the bullet, Burnworth pulled himself together and continued with his company, 50 of which were killed in 20 minutes' fighting.

The battle was the opening of the Argonne drive, taking place on September 26. Burnworth was a member of Company E, 320th Infantry. The Americans were driving the Germans back when they were met by a withering fire from a stubborn rear guard action based on many concealed machine gun nests.

Burnworth also sustained a slight wound in the right chest when a bullet grazed him, but it was not serious enought to disable him.

REV. C. C. BUCKNER

Rev. C. C. Buckner, pastor of the Christian church of Ionia, Mich., during the past three years, has resigned to accept a call to the church at Surrburg, Nebraska.

The Ionia Sentinel-Standard states that at the time the call came to Rev. Buckner he was considering a request to take up work with the War Camp Community service at Camp Sherman, Ill. This he declined because, as Rev. Buckner is reported as saying, the more western field offered greater inducements. The salary, $2,500, while smaller than offered at the war camp, is larger than paid at Ionia, but the Nebraska field is one of greater opportunities, Rev. Buckner believes.

Under Rev. Buckner's pastorate the Ionia church raised $9,400 and largely increased its membership. During the war Rev. Buckner was in great demand as a speaker at war-time gatherings of various kinds. He will leave for his new charge September 1 in event a successor has been secured meantime.

BUICK 1920 MODELS

Show Marked Improvement in Refinement and Construction.

With the announcement of our new 1920 mode 'K' series, says J A. McCreary local dealer and the marked improvement in refinements brings our new series before the buying public with an instant stamp of approval and invariably the expression is made, how such beautiful types and thoroughly constructed models can be manufactured at the prices announced with the high cost of materials and labor entering into them.

To still maintain the 1919 price upon some models with only a slight increase upon the coupe and sedans, coupled with increased quality and improvements is the result of strong purchasing power and careful consideration on the part of the Buick Motor company Prices instantly become a secondary consideration in comparison with the different models as hundreds of these models have already been sold by dealers upon a sight unseen plan, buyers having complete confidence in the Buick Motor company to manufacture a series of models retaining the Buick high standard of quality first- price later True to all former policies and backed by their integrity There is not a single part entering into the construction of the 1920 Buick car that is not as good as or better than the same part used at any previous time and further that the design has been improved and quality elevated. These model "K series excel in finish and all materials including upholstery and every component part that enters into their construction

"THE MAN HUNTER"—The new William Farnum photoplay, is being presented today The play was made from an original story by Frank Lloyd, who also directed the picture It begins in London where the character portrayed by Mr Farnum is well-to-do, and where he lives with a rather gay set of Americans He awakes one morning to learn through the newspapers that the night before he had proposed to and was accepted by a pretty girl He means to keep his promise to marry the young lady, and dresses to call upon her Before he leaves a man whom he believes is a friend persuades him to buy a large block of oil stock The stock is declared worthless Mr Farnum returns in anger to his friend's home and there meets not only his supposed friend but also his bride-to-be They are dividing his money Realizing that he has been tricked by both he attacks the man The police arrive Farnum fights the police and a merry fight it is He floors two of them but a third in self defense strikes him on the head with a club He is rendered unconscious The supposed friend makes a charge against him and he is arrested and sent to prison for twelve months A burning desire for revenge causes him to ship in the steerage to New York, whither his false friend has gone There he hires out as a longshoreman It is a lively story that contains throughout a potent appeal to all motion picture followers It gives the star a fine opportunity to display his rare ability His make-up of the various characters he portrays in this picture reflect admirably his long experience on the stage and screen A selected comedy is also being shown

THE PARAMOUNT.

ONE OF THE FINEST"—In which Tom Moore is seen as a mounted policeman in one of the fashionable parks comprised in his beat is an interesting production today He is Larry Hayes, son of a former commissioner who lives with his widowed mother and a little girl Mary Jane Andrews to whom he has given a home when her father is sent to prison His kindness and devotion to the child almost bring about his undoing, however when the rejected suitor of the girl he loves seeks to make her believe that the child is Larry Hayes own The truth comes out in a surprising dramatic climax, but not before the policeman sees all his hopes crumble and the girl he loves believe the worst She has misjudged him on another occasion also Speeding in the park her limousine has been stopped by Larry and a rebuke administered to her She construes this as impertinence and induces her father to have Larry reduced in rank It is in the succeeding events, when he is a mere plain clothes man sent to guard her sisters wedding presents that she comes to recognize him as the only man she ever loved One of the Finest is replete with exciting moments and clever characterizations A selected comedy is also being shown Monday Mae Allison, the charming Metro star, will be featured in Almost Married"

DUNBAR July 26—If rumor is correct Dunbar is not to be out of the political race this year it being stated on good authority that William C Smith senior member of the meat firm of H P Smith's Sons is to announce as a candidate for county treasurer on the Republican ticket Not since his father H P Smith filled the office has this section of the county been represented and it is not too much to say that W C Smith is a deserving Republican and would make an efficient officer A gentleman in every respect honored in the community in which he has long lived held in esteem by all who know him, and with a large acquaintance all over the county, no section can offer any better man

But if the people of Dunbar have their way Mr Smith will not be the only candidate from this section for there is much talk of Rev D F Minerd as a candidate for county commissioner of the Democratic ticket Mr Minerd has been approached by a number and asked to come into the race but as yet has not decided to do so but is considering the matter

PRUSSIANISM IN THE ARMY.

The revelations being made before the Congressional committees investigation certain phases of the conduct of the war, concerning the maltreatment of soldiers in the prison camps in France, are simply astounding. That the American Army had among its officers men who are so devoid of compassion toward men who had committed infractions of discipline, often of a trivial character, that they ordered the infliction of brutal and inhuman penalties, would be almost unbelievable were not the facts supported by ample testimony.

It has been the popular conception that officers of our Army have the instincts of gentlemen and pride themselves that their conduct is ordered by the rules which find ready acceptance among men having the right to that term. To find that there are officers who have resorted to the punishments prevalent in the Dark Ages, forces upon all Americans the humiliation that the offenses we so bitterly condemned in the Prussians have also been committed by those whose uniform has heretofore been regarded as a mark of enlightenment and the possession of a high sense of honor.

So long as the acts of brutality committed by these officers in person or by their order are permitted to go unpunished, particularly in quarters responsible for the inauguration and conduct of this system of barbarity and cruelty, the Army as a whole, including the War Department and its officials, will be considered to be seeking to shield the chief offenders. No matter how high the rank of the officer from whom the original order for the application of Hun methods of treating prisoners emanated; no matter how high the rank or how great the number of officers who were parties to the crime that has been committed against the common soldier in the ranks, the people of the United States will not be satisfied until the guilty are ferreted out and made to pay the full penalty.

That such abuses as have been brought to light were permitted to exist has been possible only because some officer, somewhere in the machinery of Army control, did not take the necessary steps to put a stop to the practices. Who that officer was ought not to be a difficult matter to determine His identity can be revealed if the War Department honestly and fairly makes the necessary effort. This is perhaps too much to expect will be done, there having been a persistent disinclination on the part of those in authority to fix responsibility for blunders, inefficiency, gross misconduct or other delinquencies on any individual, unless he be an enlisted man.

This was so convincingly demonstrated in the so-called investigation of the complaints made by soldiers in letters published in The Courier, and in other matters brought to public attention in connection with the war, that the public has little faith in the finding of a purely military court of inquiry which makes an examination into matters affecting the conduct of officers of their relations to the men under their command.

The present investigations having been undertaken by committees of Congress, which the public has the right to presume are free of Army or War Department dominance, the hope is begotten that all the facts will be laid bare; the guilty officers identified and punished as their conduct warrants. The doughboys fought to eliminate Prussianism in Europe; their friends here must see that it is stamped out of our Army.

The Dunbar township school board and taxpayers owe a vote of thanks to the auditors of the school funds. Their clear and illuminating report does what many auditors' reports fail to do—tells for what purpose the money was expended.

Some of the "Twilight" Senators are beginning to see the clear light of day on the Shantung and other propositions.

George Creel solemnly declares it as his belief that Americans are in danger of being "Prussianized by over-indulgence of hate against Germany." Even if true, which it is not, it would be much better than becoming un-American through over-confidence in Creelism.

It is being slowly forced in upon the White House consciousness that the Senate has some right to information gleaned during the sojourn at the Winter Capital in gay Paree.

There are hints that ex-President Taft is beginning to realize the need of a League to Protect Peacemakers.

Soldiers Learned The Golden Rule

By a Croix de Guerre Man of the Rainbow Division in the Christian Herald.

A great many people, correspondents, investigators and others trained in the observation of humanity in bulk, have returned from Europe in the past year with various ideas, many of them strange and curious, as to just what we who served on the battlefields of France got out of the war in the way of religion.

Personally I don't believe that the American soldier, as a unit, got religion as it is generally construed at all—that is, he did not "hit the sawdust trail," nor did he publicy proclaim his redemption from the paths of sin in the good old camp meeting style.

No man, however, could possibly have gone through that seething caldron "over there" without acquiring something. However, to me it seemed that this something was a larger and broader Christianity—a sort of brotherhood whose one and perhaps only law was the golden rule.

Creeds and doctrines were for the most part forgotten on the field. Protestant, Jew and Catholic lived or died side by side with no thought save of serving each as best he might, not only God and country, but also his fellow man. Under fire at the front they were united against one common foe. In the rear when danger was passed this same unity continued, but against many foes—against selfishness, blasphemy, drunkenness, social evils and the like.

Men learned that to be a soldier in the truest sense of the word it was not necessary to be a loud swearing, licentious, braggart, the embodiment of all unchristian-like qualities; and a new standard was borne on those fields of death and suffering. The man who had seen his companions fall, who had come near to the supreme sacrifice himself, was imbued with a different sort of spirit than that which has usually and unfortunately been attributed to the soldier.

Orders and regulations for our government were many, their enforcement was necessarily strict; and prompt punishment awaited the delinquent. No less prompt and infinitely more sure was the punishment afforded him who violated the higher order—the greatest command ever imposed upon man—"Whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye unto them."

The army held men of every nationality—of all races and tongues; many had probably never even heard or read this wonderful command, but evidences of its power and influence were everywhere. The deeds of personal heroism which were of daily and ofttimes almost hourly occurrence—things such as the many rescues of wounded comrades in the face of deadly machine gun fire—all were but the expressions of belief in the universal doctrine proclaiming "man's brotherhood to man"; and, being such, were of much greater value to the illiterate and unread than any printed or spoken word.

For weeks at a time our only opportunity for open worship was at the burial service of some fallen comrade. The chaplains could but seldom assemble more than a score of men together for divine services, and, under such conditions, it would seem but natural that when the scattered units of a regiment were assembled, the response to "church call" would be but meager. This was not the case, however. All who were not actually on guard or at work unfailingly attended service. Those who at home in their comfortable, well-heated homes, with roofs over their heads and four walls to protect them from the elements, who on a showery Sunday felt no desire and no sense of duty to attend their church, now stood reverently in the open shell torn fields, more often than not in a never ceasing, cold, drizzling rain, and found no discomfort too great, no hardship too difficult to endure, that they might give thanks to Him who had guided them safely through the "valley of the shadow of death."

The public assemblage for worship with its attendant ritual was not so necessary for us; for each man day by day was living a Christian life in the finest sense of the word, in that he was heedless of any danger, indifferent to any hardship or risk in the service of his fellow man. Even as we had a unity of command, so had we a unity of creed and race, each merged into the one, and that one pledged to God, country and true Christian brotherhood.

As our most famous chaplain once remarked "There was scarcely any time for praying, what with dodging shells and reading one's shirt." But such time as there was for prayer was utilized by a far larger number of men than the casual observer realized; nor was there any self-consciousness such as we are all familiar with at home.

Contrary to many of our popular novelists, men did not drop down on their knees under fire and in times of great danger and pray to their Maker for relief and guidance; but a vast majority did sincerely, thought silently, commune with God each night of their lives, commending themselves to Him and asking protection and strength.

Somehow the church will reach these men—they have returned as earnest seekers for truth—they have a real need—a real desire to learn—to know. But they will not accept a more narrow doctrine—a more conventional dogmatic religion, than they learned "Over There"—whose creed is the Golden Rule.

Let Us Be Thankful.

In the light of the self-revelation of ignorance and vanity and egotism which Henry Ford is making of himself, this nation may well thank Heaven that Michigan did not follow President Wilson's advice and send Ford to the United States Senate. Mr. Wilson's warmest friends may likewise be thankful that he was saved from being sponsor for Ford in the Senate.

"My aunt told me you repeated this scandal to her"

"I don't think your aunt can have said that," Mrs. Johnson returned sharply "I did not repeat a scandal of any kind to your aunt and I think you are mistaken in saying she told you I did We may have discussed some matters that have been a topic of comment about town—"

"Yes'" George cried "I think you may have' That's what I'm here about and what I intend to—"

"Don't tell me what you intend please," Mrs. Johnson interrupted crisply "And I should prefer that you would not make your voice quite so loud in this house, which I happen to own Your aunt may have told you—though I think it would have been very unwise in her if she did, and not very considerate of me—she may have told you that we discussed some topic as I have mentioned, and possibly that would have been true. If I talked it over with her, you may be sure I spoke in the most charitable spirit, and without sharing in other people's disposition to put an evil interpretation on what may be nothing more than unfortunate appearances and—"

"My God!" said George. "I can't stand this!"

"You have the option of dropping the subject' Mrs Johnson suggested tartly, and she added' "Or of leaving the house"

"I'll do that soon enough, but first I mean to know—"

"I am perfectly willing to tell you anything you wish if you will remember to ask it quietly I'll also take the liberty of reminding you that I had a perfect right to discuss the subject with your aunt. Other people—'

"Other people'" the unhappy George repeated viciously. "That's what I want to know about—these other people' You say you know of other people who talk about this.' '

"I presume they do."

"How many?'

"What?"

"I want to know how many other people talk about it?"

"Dear, dear!" she protested. "How should I know that?"

"Haven't you heard anybody mention it?"

"I presume so"

"Well, how many have you heard?"

Mrs Johnson was becoming more annoyed than apprehensive, and she showed it "Really, this isn't a courtroom" she said "And I'm not a defendant in a libel suit, either!"

The unfortunate young man lost what remained of his balance. "You may be!" he cried "I intend to know just who's dared to say these things, if I have to force my way into every house in town, and I'm going to make them take every word of it back' I mean to know the name of every slanderer that's spoken of this matter to you and of every tattler you've passed it on to yourself. I mean to know—'

"You'll know something pretty quick!" she said rising with difficulty, and her voice was thick with the sense of insult. "You'll know that you're out in the street. Please to leave my house!"

George stiffened sharply. Then he bowed, and strode out of the door

Three minutes later, dishevelled and perspiring but cold all over he burst into his Uncle George's room at the Major's without knocking Amberson was dressing

"Good gracious, George!" he exclaimed "what's up?"

"You have your own tastes!" was Amberson's comment. "But curious as they are you ought to do something better with your hair, and button your waistcoat to the right buttons—even for Mrs Johnson' What were you doing over there?"

"She told me to leave the house," George said desperately "I went there because Aunt Fanny told me the whole town was talking about my mother and that man Morgan—that they say my mother is going to marry him and that proves she was too fond of him before my father died—she said this Mrs Johnson was one that talked about it, and I went to her to ask who were the others"

Amberson's jaw fell in dismay. "Don't tell me you did that!" he said, in a low voice, and then, seeing it was true, "Oh, now you have done it!"

"I've done it?" George cried "What do you mean I've done it? And what have I done?'

Amberson had collapsed into an easy chair beside his dressing table, the white evening tie he had been about to put on dangling from his hand, which had fallen limply on the arm of the chair. "By Jove!" he muttered "That is too bad!"

George folded his arms bitterly. "Will you kindly answer my question? What have I done that wasn't honorable and right? Do you think these cliffraff can go about bandying my mother's name—"

"They can now," said Amberson. "I don't know if they could before, but they certainly can now!'

"What do you mean by that?"

His uncle sighed profoundly, picked up his tie, and, preoccupied with despondency, twisted the strip of white lawn till it became unwearable. Meanwhile he tried to enlighten his nephew. "Gossip is never fatal, Georgie," he said, "until it is denied Gossip goes on about every human being alive and about all the dead that are alive enough to be remembered, and yet almost never does any harm until some defender makes a controversy'

"See here," George said, "I didn't come to listen to any generalizing dose of philosophy! I ask you—"

"You asked me what you've done, and I'm telling you" Amberson gave him a melancholy smile, continuing "Suffer me to do it in my own way Fanny says there's been talk about your mother, and that Mrs Johnson does some of it I don't know, because naturally nobody would come to me with such stuff or mention it before me, but it's presumably true—I suppose it is I've seen Fanny with Mrs Johnson quite a lot, and that old lady is a notorious gossip and that's why she ordered you out of her house when you pinned her down that she'd been gossiping I suppose it's true that the 'whole town,' a lot of others, that is do share in the gossip In this town, naturally, anything about any Amberson has always been a stone dropped into the center of a pond, and a lie would send the ripples as far as a truth would You can be sure that for many years there's been more gossip in this place about the Ambersons than about any other family I dare say it isn't so much so now as it used to be, because the town got too big long ago, but it's the truth that the more prominent you are the more gossip there is about you and the more people would like to pull you down. Well, they can't do it as long as you refuse to know what gossip there is about you. But the minute you notice it it's got you' I'm not speaking of certain kinds of slander that sometimes people have got to take to the courts, I'm talking of the wretched buzzing the Mrs Johnsons do—the thing you seem to have such a horror of—people talking'—the kind of thing that has assailed your mother People who have repeated a slander either get ashamed or forget it, if they're let alone People will forget almost any slander except one that's been fought"

"Gossip Is Never Fatal, Georgie," He Said, "Until It Is Denied."

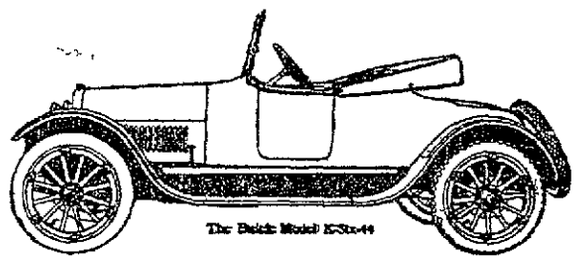
1920 Series Model "K"-44



Buick Three-Passenger Roadster

THE BUICK Model K-Six-44 possesses marked advantages for the man or woman who wishes a car of limited passenger capacity, with an exceptionally roomy and comfortable driving compartment. This three-passenger model makes the most of these desirable features, without sacrificing one whit of the modish appearance that belongs to the type.

The body is distinctly a Buick creation, broadening out to accommodate a wide, deep seat for three, then curving in at the back to form a trim rear deck with a weatherproof carrying space for luggage.

The dimensions of the driving compartment insure easy entrance or exit from either side, with the control and brake levers well forward but within easy reach. The French pleated upholstery is built for long wear and comfort.

Inclined windshield, handsome improved top of high grade material, side curtains that swing open with the doors.

Y. M. C. A. SENDS 80 REELS OF MOVIES TO HAITI MARINES

Entertainment of "Devil Dogs" on Duty There to Be Provided For.

MUCH OTHER EQUIPMENT

Player-Pianos, Victrolas, Library Pool Tables, Athletic Equipment and Even Garden Seeds Included in Batch of Supplies for Lonely Lads.

Eighty reels of motion picture films supplied by the Y. M. C. A., have been sent to Haiti in charge of Chaplain H. M. Peterson, of the First Provisional Brigade, Marine Corps, for the entertainment of Uncle Sam's "Devil Dogs" now stationed on the island. The films are the products of some of the biggest motion picture stars, including such players as William S. Hart, Douglas Fairbanks, Dustin Farnum, Wallace Reid, Blanche Sweet and Mae Murray.

These movies, nevertheless, are but a part of the regular monthly shipment made by the Y. M. C. A. to the Marines in the West Indies. The total cost of the material sent them in the last year approximates $50,000, a fourth of this amount going to Haiti.

In acknowledgement of the films, Chaplain PePterson has written to the "Y" as follows:

"We have received our motion picture service from the Y. M. C. A. with an average of perhaps about four shows per month. We are now endeavoring to show the films at five points in Haiti. The service has been appreciated by officers and men alike.

"I cannot give a full detailed list of the supplies you have sent during the past year without consulting my files, as they are too numerous to recall from memory. Let me say that no other organization has done so much—or rather, all the organizations together have not done so much as the Y. M. C. A. alone."

About a year ago W. F. Ashe, West Indian District Representative of the Navy Commission on Training Camp Activities, made a report to the Y. M. C. A. of the detailed welfare needs of the men after a survey of the Marine Camps. There were 26 of these camps.

The recommendations called for motion picture projection machines with film service in 20 cases, and in all but six camps, a player-piano with music rolls; victrola with approximately 100 records, a pool table, a small library, musical instruments, sporting goods, including usually half dozen baseballs, a half dozen ball bats, several volley balls, volley ball nets, a half dozen basket balls, basket ball goals, a wrestling mat and tennis equipment; carpenter tools, garden implements, and garden seeds. In the six camps excepted above, the recommendation suggested only the player-piano, music rolls, victrola and records, a pool table, and a library with magizines. The bowling alleys were not sent because it was found that wood-boring worms which infest the islands would destroy them.

Seeds shipped to the Marines included varieties of beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, corn, celery, cucumber, egg plant, endive, lettuce, musk melon, water melon, okra, onions, pepper, pumpkins, radishes, spinach, squash, tomato, parsley and turnips.

In addition to sending supplies, the "Y" has placed three secretaries to work with the Marines in the islands. S. E. Shaw has been sent to Port au Prince, and John Caperton to Guantanamo, while D. F. Dunaster, District Secretary, visits all camps, cooperating with the chaplains and commanding officers in welfare work. Two more men are to be placed on this work shortly.

PRAISES OVERSIZE

Extra Large Tires Get Results; Fisk Has New One.

The local dealer of Fisk tires is exhibiting all the signs of a man who has placed his bet on a fixed race on the strength of an inside tip. The cause of his unseeming elation is the arrival of the new Fisk oversize nonskid tire which he now has in the tire rack. "Stand it up beside any other tire on the market," says the tire doctor, "and see yourself!" That is the method employed by this dealer and the number of tires of this type seen on the roads in this locality attest to the merit of his new selling practice.

The beauty of the whole scheme seems to be in the enthusiasm and pride that these self-sold purchasers exhibit after a trial of the oversize principle. After all, a tire, like anything else, yields service only in direct proportion to the amount of service giving qualities which are built in to it. The oversize principle is so simple, and sure, that it is wondered why manufacturers did not discover its value long before.

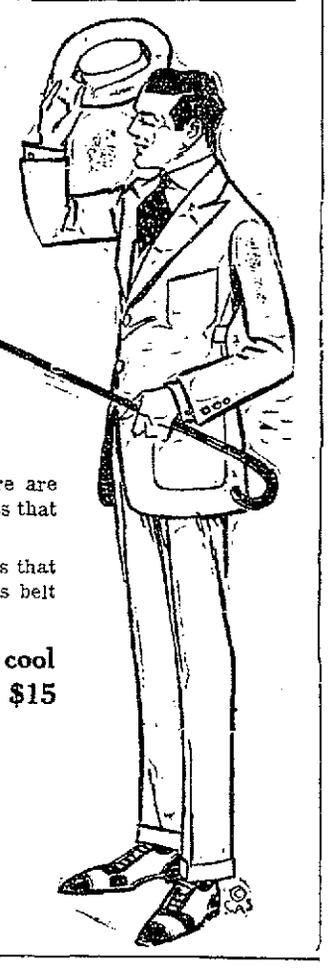
Have You Noticed the Difference in Men's Summer Clothes?



For there is a great difference.

A man may be able to get a cheap summer suit, but if he values his appearance it will not be cheap after the first few wearings. It will bag and sag and make him sorry he ever saw it.

Summer suits like others, should be carefully made.

And these are well made as is every suit in stock. There are double facings where they are needed and all the other niceties that mean so much to the service of a man's suit.

And there is a worthy selection of patterns and colorings that will appeal to younger or older men. The adjustable trousers belt appeals to men who want comfort.

Palm Beach Suits in tans and grays and cool cloths in a splendid assortment of patterns are $15 and $18.

Mohairs are $18.00.

For Vacation Time—

Khaki Twill and Duck Trousers $2.00 a pair.
